M. STORY CONTRACTOR OF THE PARTY

The New Iron Men-of-War.

We recently published an account of the yard of Napier & Co., Glasgow. Mr. Vivian, a member of Parliament, gives it as his opinion that the best wooden war ships are as useless in the presence of an iron-clad frigate as an old flint musket before the Minie rifle. The necessity for a complete revolution in the building of naval vessels is therefore apparent. The vessel building at Glasgow is to be called the Black Prince, and hundreds of workmen are as busy as bees assisting in her construction. She will be 420 feet long; breadth, 58 feet; depth, 42 feet. She is to be divided into eighteen water-tight compartments, and two great Armstrong rifled guns are appointed for each bulkhead. The bottom is constructed of plates 1½ inches thick, and the sides lined with river some of an incut thick. Over this is to be laid teak wood planking, 1 foot thick; and the teak is to be covered with wrought iron plates, each 151 feet long, 3 feet wide, and 41 inches thick. All these iron plates are made in the best manner. They are tongued and grooved on the edges and ends, so that they fit most accurately into one another, and make watertight joints throughout the whole hull. All these iron plates are cut and punched close to the vessel, whereby the fitting of them is rendered very convenient. When completed. the Black Prince will be 10,000 tons bunden, Lord Brougham on American Slavery. and her screw engines, now being built by Penn & Co., of London, will be 1,250 horsepower. No person can have an adequate idea of the great size and strength of such a ship without actually beholding it, but the account given will convey such an idea as will at once render it apparent that no wooden frigate could possibly compete each of these vessels will certainly be a "leviathan of the deep."

The tests which were applied to the plates furnished by the builders were of the most trying character, some being fired at with 68-pounders at 200 yards' range. The labor involved in building up these plates i enormous. In the first instance, small scraps of iron are thrown into the fires, and, when in a state of red heat, are subjected to severe hammering, under the steam hammer, unit the whole is beaten and amalgamated into a solid mass of about half a ton weight. This lump is then placed on the top of a similar mass, the whole made red hot, and hammered and welded together. Repeated additions of this kind are made until about five tons of metal are thus welded together in one huge shapeless body. This is then brought to a glowing white heat, and placed ander the huge hammer, the th indering blows of which gradually reduic it into brought to a glowing white heat, and placed under the huge hammer, the thindering blows of which gradually reducife it into shape. Again and again the endextus slab is put into the furnace and hamfred d into one piece of 15 feet long, 3 feet high, and 4½ inches thick. From ten to at the men are engaged in the work of high hese ponderous masses of iron, whiffed that yed about apparently with the middle Beglse. The plates, after having been roughly formed The plates, after having been roughly formed into shape, are completely pianed and squared. Planing machines of enormous size hug these plates in their resistless arms, and bear them slowly and silently under the sharp cutting edges of the tools, and thin shavings of the metal, which, as they are cut, coil up in long bright ringlets of iron, attest the tremendous power of these projections and all the descriptions and all the descriptions. of iron, attest the tremendous power of these noiseless and all but omnipotent machines. When the edges and surfaces are made perfectly smooth, like the finest work of the cabinet maker, the plates are placed on an end, gripped firmly by a mortising machine, and, as they travel slowly backward and forward in the framework against a small tongue of steel, a groove of about one inch in width and depth is formed, into which the corresponding projections formed on the side corresponding projections formed on the side of another plate will fit with the most perfect accuracy, the plates all being made to dovetail on each of the four sides. Society in Charleston.

Society in Charleston.

Society in Charleston, S. C., as in other parts of the world, is composed partly of the creme de la creme—of the high-tory Faubourg St. Germain, including those descendants of the earliest British and Huguenot settlers who have attained to wealth and influence. The old gentlemen of that class are the venerable Knickerbockers of Charleston, but just now they are electrified by the unusual spirit of patriotic enthusiasm. These families supply society with the most stately and fascinating belles, and the most valiant and dashing beaux; they are distinguished from the social clique beneath them by a great simplicity and urbanity of manner, derived from their greater confidence in their position. The old gentlemen planters are particularly modest and unassuming, and yet shrewd withal, resembling in that rewe recently published an account of the successful launching of the new iron-clad man-of-war, the Warrior. Another huge mass of iron is being put into shape at the warrior Nanjer & Co. Clarge State of the coupling recently, who endeavor by their kindness of deportment to atone, as it were, for the coupling recently. for the crushing magnitude of their wealth. This best class of society combines with some of the sharp and shrewd elements of the present civilization, many of the more beautiful features of the earlier years of South Carolina life; and beneath all the conflicting feelings of the hour and the terrorism of self-preservation runs a fine thread of deportment, giving on the whole the im-pression that this class of society constitutes the real gentry of the country, possessing comparatively little intellectual taste, but much of the best innate refinement. Next to this best class of society come the usual cliques of all sorts of people whose wealth and refinement permit them to mingle with their social superiors. Military men marrying generally from inclination, their wives are frequently taken from the unwealthy classes, and in many instances present, in their molest appearance, a strikpresent, in their modest appearance a strik-plantations; yet both associate here freely plantations; yet both associate here freely and pleasantly. Among educated people here there is generosity and an absence of narrowness in social relations which contrasts favorably with the North. Even above the richest planter stands the gifted statesman, and the skilful officer and man of science and literature and artists are greatly honored. The circles of the old his greatly honored. The circles of the old his-torical families includes many of the present members of the Legislature and the government, and now presents a combination of political and social interest equaled only by Washington in its palmy days.—N. Вкоиснам, Nov. 20, 1860.

Sin :- I feel honored by the invitation to attend the Boston Convention, and to give my opinion upon the question "How can American slavery be abolished?" I corwith it.

The entire shells of both the Warrior and Black Prince are made of the best scrap iron; the ribs which spring from the keels are 3 feet 3 inches apart, and are T shaped; inside of these another set of beams run along the whole length at intervals of 5 feet, and all strengthened with enormous iron girders. The decks are to be covered with timber, supported on huge iron arches. The engines are to be so protected that no shot will be able to reach them; and the stem and stern may be completely riddled, and yot the frighte will float. When finished, each of these vessels will certainly be a "leviathan of the deep."

The tests which were applied to the plates

now laid down. But I am bound to express my doubt if such a decision would have been given had Jamaica touched upon the coasts of this country. It is certain that the judges did not intend to declare that all property in slaves should instantly cease; and yet such would have been the inevitable effect of their judgment in the case supposed, which somewhat resembles that of America.

In the elevation of your new President, all friends of America, of its continued union, of the final extinction of slavery by peaceful means, and of the utter immediate extinction of the execrable slave trade—all driends of the human race must heartily reice. They will, let us hope, find in him a powerful ally, as his country may expect to find an able, a consistent and an honest ruler. I have the honor to be your faithful BROUGHAM.

An English Laborer's Life.—A coroner's inquest has just revealed a dreadful case of semi-starvation at Great Massingham, Norfolk. The deceased was wife of John Langley, an agricultural laborer, living in the parish; and the jury, in returning a verdict that the died from the effects of a blow, caused by a fall, which produced profuse extravasation of blood upon the brain, expressed an opinion "that she as well as her husband and family, have been for some time past in a state bordering upon starva-tion, and that weakness, induced by the want of the common necessaries of life, want of the common necessaries of life, caused her to fall, whereby she received the wound that caused her death." The evidence adduced supported this observation of the Jury. Sophia Gedge, a neighbor, stated that the poor woman had often complained to her that she had not enough to eat; and the husband, who appeared to have suffered from want of nourishment himself, also deposed:—"She had not suffi-cient food for the last two months. My wages are 10s, per week, and my eldest boy earns 2s, per week; but deductions are made for wet days. One week I had only made for wet days. One week I had only 9s. 7d., my master having deducted 5d. My rent is £1413s. yer year. I have not been able to buy a piece of meat for the last four months; in fact, I have not bread enough for myself, my wife, and my six children. I have often gone to work without any food, as I did not like to take it from the poor children. In consequence of my not having money to buy sufficient bread, I have incurred a debt of 10s. for bread and flour."—London Dispatch.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT .- De-Holloway's Pills and Ointment.—Derangement of the Stomach and Bowels.—In all cases of irregularities of the liver, the stomach and bowels, Holloway's celebrated Pills are a true specific. Dysentery, biliousness, acidity of the stomach, sick headache, debility, want of appetite, drowsiness, and incapacity for exertion will all pass off before a course of these pills, which purify the blood and give tone to the whole system. In external injuries such as burns, seales, and external injuries such as burns, scalds, and bruises, and all skin diseases, the Untment is wenderfully efficacious. Both the Pills and Ointment are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with a grain of mercury, or any deleterious substance. They can be used with safety by both sexes, at all ages, in

The Best Route to Cariboo.

The routes via Fraser River to Lytton or Douglas, and thence overland to Cariboo, are acknowledged by all to possess vast advan tages over that through Oregon via the Columbia River. The Portland people don't seem willing to acknowledge this superiority, for on the arrival of the Pacific at that place last week with nearly 100 persons bound to Cariboo-who had intended proceeding to the mines by way of Victoria and Fraser River-the passengers were approached by the Portlanders, who, by dint of energetic "buzzing," induced them to change their minds and remain at that place till the trails became passable. Had these passengers came through to Victoria on the Santa Cruz, they might to-day have been ascending Fraser River on one of the steamers, and making good time to the El Dorado of their hopes instead of remaining at Portland for an indefinite period, and in the end taking a longer and less economical trail.

We have no objection to our Oregon neighbors using all honorable means to induce immigrants to pass through their State; but when they resort to unfair means, they will not only in the end injure themselves, but also seriously inconvenience, if not ruin, those whom they deceive. It is well known that as far as the facilities for reaching Cariboo, at any season of the year, are concerned, we are far ahead of Portland. The trip from Portland to Victoria is generally made in from thirty-six to forty hours, at a trifling addition to the cost of being landed at the former town. From here to New Westminster the fare on the steamer varys from three to six dollars; from New Westminster to Yale—the highest navigable point 20 cents each; Harper's Magazine, Blackwood's for steam boats on Fraser River-the fare is | Magazine, Chambers' Journal, All the Year Round, but $2; and from thence the immigrant takes his way over the new trail along the hill and Eclectic Magazines, 50 cents each. Parties river bank-passing some of the richest bars ever struck in British Columbiato Lytton City. Or, if he prefers the Harrison-Lillooet route, he steps aboard the steamer at New Westminster—is carried to Port Douglas for $2; buys a through ticket on the lake steamers, and is carried to Cayoosh for the merely nominal sum of $3. At either Cayoosh or Lytton, he can be furnished with everything needful for the mines at exceedingly low prices, and contract with a packer at the present cheap rates of freight to carry him and his supplies to the very door, as it were, of the Cariboo mines. Few who have ever traveled the two routes but prefer our own; and even one of the most enterprising packers Oregon can boast of came up on the Santa Cruz on Friday, in preference to going by the Dalles. It is all very well for the Portlanders to take advantage of the steamers putting in at their port to "buzz' the miners and induce them to go by the Dalles: but let them remember the miserable fate of Whatcom-the town that once used the same means to induce men who were so unfortunate as to set foot on its streets to "wait till the trail opened." We all know that they waited and waited to no purpose, and that when the trail was opened it proved worse than useless. Whatcom now contains a few ricketty buildings and a mere handful of inhabitants. It stands a monument of warning to all other towns that may feel disposed to follow the same deceptive policy. Of course we do not imagine that Portland will ever get so low down as Whatcom-we hope not; but we put the question fairly and squarely to those of its inhabitants who are endeavoring to build it up by the means we have alluded to, if they think there is any truth in the old adage, "a burnt child dreads the fire ?" and whether, if a Cariboo miner has been once burnt by passing over the Dalles route through their misrepresentations, that he will ever be likely to choose the same route in future? We think not. He will shun Portland as if it were plague-infected, and go leagues out of the way to avoid passing through the same ordeal. We are willing that each route shall have all the credit it is entitled to; but we cannot consent to see a system of misrepresentation continued from year to year without, in justice to ourselves,

THE LONDON MONEY MARKET,-The London Daily News, in enumerating the reason, assigned for the recent action of the Bank of England in raising the rate of discom t, says: " The Bank of France is in ar unsatisfactory position, the effect of the American panic having relatively been quite as much felt in France as in England. There is also the fact that the reserve of notes in the Bank of England by last returns showed a falling off of upwards of a million pounds. The news from America is supposed to have the chief influence in the raising our voice against it.

bank parlor, the impression being that further gold shipments would be made to New York during the week." The London Times says the bank movement created no dissatisfaction, and there was not the slightest symptom of internal pressure or discredit. Commercial men were disposed to believe in the prosperous course of business later in the year. The Daily News says that while there is not the slightest appearance of panic, a feeling of discouragement and uneasiness was becoming more plainly observable. It was feared further strong action may be necessary on the part of the bank. Some apprehension was felt as to the effect even in the present sound condition of trade, occasioned by the struggling for bullion between the three greatest money markets in the world-those of England, France and

THE FIRST TRAIN FROM OREGON.—Col. Baker has arrived here with 120 head of horses and mules from Walla Walla. ROCK CREEK, Feb. 12, 1861. EDITOR BRITISH COLONIST: - In glancing over your valuable journal of the 27th ult., I find the above palpable falsehood from the pen of a Cayoosh correspondent. I have kept a strict eye on passing events in this region, and I know of no person or persons who have passed through this place or Similkameen for the upper country this winter; and in regard to the miners leaving Rock Creek or the Similkameen who have wintered here—of whom I profess to be an wintered here—of whom I profess to be an humble representative—as your correspondent asserts, for Cayoosh, or any part of the upper country, it is simply riduculous, as they are perfectly satisfied with their prospects. All of them have good paying claims, which will average at least ten dollars per day to the hand, and some as high as one hundred dollars. It is my opinion that your cor espondent manufactured the above paragraph out of whole cloth, without any regard to truth.

Yours, respectfully,

E. A. BROFORT, A Rock Creek Miner.

SOUTHGATE & MITCHELL,

Court of Revision.

Mr. W. T. Drake, the Revising Barrister of the List of Voters, opened a court for the purpose of hearing and deciding upon objections to the registered lists of 1859-'61, in the Police Court room, yesterday afternoon, at 4 o'clock. About forty persons, principally colored, were in attendance.

Mr. Geo. E. Nias appeared as principal objector.

Frederick P. Augusta, (colored) was the first name called, and no answer being re-ceived it was laid over.

Wm. Bastion (colored), in California, laid over.

Mr. Crease said he appeared in behalf of several colored gentlemen whose names had been objected to.

Mr. DeCosmos said he believed that in accordance with English law a barrister could not appear here.

The Revisor—Oh, yes! he is allowed to appear in England.

The Revisor—Oh, yes! he is allowed to appear in England.
Mr. De Cosmos—If you allow barristers to appear on one side, why not on the other? The law distinctly says barristers shall not appear on either side.
Revisor—The law allows counsel to appear on either side.
Mr. Nias—You are now ruling directly against the law.

Mr. De Cosmos showed the Revisor the Act, 6 Vic., sec. 4.

Revisor—The law, I see. does exclude barristers, but not others. Mr. Crease cau-not appear as a barrister.

Mr. Nias—The intention of the Act was

Mr. Mas—The internation of the Act was clearly to keep lawyers away from these Courts of Revision.

Mr. De Cosmos—I would like to put Mr. Crease on oath that he was not retained by the parties for whom he appears.

Mr. Crease replied that he was ready to take the oath

Robert Aberacthy (colored), ditto.
Stacey Cooness (colored), came forward, and Mr. Nias testified to having served him with a notice. He swore that his qualification was a house and lot on Johnson street.
Mr. Nias—Are you a citizen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.?

Ingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. S Cooness—Yes.
N.—Where were you born?
C.—In New Jersey, U. S.
N.—How did you become a citizen here,

Because I was not a citizen of any other country.

Revisor—Have you taken the oath of allegiance to the Queen?

C.-I have.
Mr. Nias-I submit that Cooness is not a citizen of this country. We have no naturalization laws here, and the English law admits of no naturalization. The Revisor said he should postpone his decision till after getting through all the Mr. Nias claimed that the decision in each case must be given at once and in open court.

The Revisor said he decided by the local law, which allowed him to give his decision at such time and place as he saw fit. Revisor—John Archer! A voice—Gone to British Columbia.

Mr. Nias-His notice to attend was put in the post office.

Revisor—That is not enough; it should have been served on the person or on the property in respect of which he was qualified. Mr. Nias complained that in many cases it was impossible to find the properly from the imperiect manner in which it was de-scribed on the list. The mere fact that the qualification is not sufficiently described is good cause of complaint.

The Revisor said that it was owing to the imperfect manner in which the houses and lots are numbered here.

Mr. Nias replied that the act did not say the post office was not a good service. I hope, Mr. Drake, you will sit as an impartial Revisor-I shall allow no such remarks

Mr. Nias-Well, but its a good and sufficient service.

Revisor—In all these cases you must prove a service of the notice before I can admit the objection. Mr. Sherifl, you have objected to Archer's name — from what

Mr. Poston said a notice was served at the Chief Justice's rooms, having been given to one Smithie, a colored porter at the Government buildings.

Smithie was called and testified that he had been handed a note for Judge Begbie and laid it on the table in a room the Judge usually occupied when in town; did not know whether he received it or not.

Mr. Kerr was called upon to swear to the qualification of Judge Begbie, but declined being sworn. The case was laid over.

There are two periods, especially in Woman's life, which require for safe passage, judgment and attention. Irregularity is apt at those critical times to take place, and to lay the foundation of nature disease. These l'ills, safe in action, and effective in result, should be taken at certain periods, and the issue will be marvellous both to the young and the middle aged. They prevent nervousness, hysterics, dropsy, and a host of similar serious disorders, by expelling all impurities from the system, therefore none should ver be without them.

Blood to the Heac.—Diseases of the Heart.

More persons die suddenly from diseases of the heart than the unlearned suppose: in such complaints, the bowels should always be kept well open head. These celebrated Hils purify the blood in a extraordinary manner, and should be taken in copiunt to overload the stomach; by this means all danger's quickly averted.

Children's Complaints.

It is not generally known, but such is the fact, the children require medicine oftener than their parents. Three-tourths of the children die before they attain the age of eight years. Let mothers, then, be wise, and give to their children small doses of these invaluable Pills once or twice every week, in such quantity as may act gently upon the system twice in the cuty-tour nours. For infants, a Pill may Pill gross hamors that are constantly floating about in the blood of children, the forerunners of annual complaints, will thus be explicit, and the lives of thousands sayed and preserved to their parents. Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the soorld for the following diseases:
